4.6. No Notice of Trial Court's Order on Motion for Forensic DNA Testing

(a) Additional Time to File Notice of Appeal. Notwithstanding Rules 26.2 and 26.3, a defendant may move for additional time to file a notice of appeal under Code of Criminal Procedure chapter 64 (Motion for Forensic DNA Testing) if the defendant neither received notice nor acquired actual knowledge that the trial judge signed an appealable order before the time for filing a notice of appeal had expired.

(b) Contents of Motion for Additional Time. The motion must be in writing and sworn, state the earliest date when the defendant first received notice or acquired actual knowledge that the appealable order had been signed, and comply with Rule 10.5(b)(2).

(c) When and Where to File.

(1) The motion must be filed within 30 days of the date upon which the defendant first received notice or acquired actual knowledge of the trial court's signing of the appealable order. But in no event may the motion be filed more than 120 days after the date the appealable order was signed.

(2) The motion must be filed in the proper court of appeals.

(d) Order of the Court. The court of appeals must grant a motion for additional time if it finds that the defendant neither received notice nor acquired actual knowledge of the trial judge's signing of an appealable order before the time for filing a notice of appeal had expired and that the defendant timely filed the motion for additional time. The time for filing the document will begin to run on the date when the court grants the motion.
