Summary: Civil Mock Trial of Goldie Locks versus the Three Bears

Plaintiff: The plaintiff accuses Poppa, Momma, and Junior Bear of bullying, cyberbullying, slander, mental anguish, and conspiracy. The Big Bad Bears tricked Goldie Locks into entering their home and feeling welcomed to enjoy their hospitality. Then they had her arrested falsely. All their lives children have heard bear-faced lies about her visit to their home. Today they are going to hear the other side of the story—hers!

Defense: The defense argues the defendants are sweet and did not commit any of the claims. The Three Bears say Goldie came to court loaded for bear and wants to punish them for complaining about her beary bad behavior. They simply told everyone the bear facts about her entering their home without permission, stealing their food, breaking Junior’s chair, and soiling Junior’s bed. She should be sent to the Youth Village.

Witnesses for Plaintiff: Little Red Riding Hoodie testifies the bears tricked Goldie into entering their home, probably to eat her. She says she also would have entered, based on the Open House and For Sale signs, Welcome mat, and opened front door; and would have assumed the soup was for guests—but not if she knew the scary bears lived there.

Witness for Defense: Forest Ranger Third Little Pig testifies he arrested Goldie because the bears demanded it and because she reminded him of B. B. Wolf’s entry into his home. Her lack of respect is “despignable.” He admits, however, he entered the home after seeing the Open House and For Sale signs, Welcome mat, and opened front door.

Closing Arguments: Goldie and Ranger Pig both entered the “Open House” at the Bear home, based on the signs, mat, and opened door. Why, then, argues the plaintiff, did the pig arrest her for doing what he did? That double standard proves the bear-faced lies are hogwash and full of baloney. The bears tricked her, perhaps because they wanted to eat her; embearassed her; and made her life unbearable. Their grizzly attacks as they bear mauled her in person and online proves their conspiracy. They are guilty of all claims and should pay $5,000. Truly, Poppa, Momma, and Junior are Big Bad Bears.

The defense denies the three lovable, huggable teddy bears bullied, cyberbullied, or slandered Goldie, nor did they conspire against her or cause her mental anguish. They merely told the truth about this spoiled, dyed-blonde who disrespected their home, their property, and them. They did so because they couldn’t bear the responsibility of this brat victimizing anyone else. They caught her bearhanded, sleeping on Junior’s bed after eating his Cream of Honey Soup and breaking his favorite chair. It is only proper to find the Bears did not commit any of her claims. The truth is the ultimate defense.
